PASSING AWAY OF E. B. GAGE

Death at San Francisco Yesterday of a Man Who Had Been Foremost in the Building of This State

E. B. Gage, who has had as much to do with the affairs of Arizona as any man who ever lived in it, died yesterday at San Francisco. A telegram announcing his death was received yesterday afternoon by H. J. McClung of the Phoenix National Bank, with which Mr. Gage had been connected for many years as president.

Mr. Gage would have been seventy-four years of age next October. The cause of death was an incurable disease of which he had been suffering for many years and for which he had submitted to numerous operations.

He had been a resident of Arizona for a generation. He settled first at Tombstone soon after the opening of that great camp and in a short time became the foremost figure in the mining industry there. He was president of the Tombstone Mining and Milling company. With the shutting down of operations at that camp, Mr. Gage became president of the Congress Consolidated Gold Mining company and there formed his first association with F. M. Murphy.

He became a director of the Santa Fe, Prescott and Phoenix railroad, and after that was an important figure in the Development Company of America, in charge of operations at Tombstone when the company took over all those properties which had long lain idle.

Mr. Gage was elected president of the Phoenix National Bank in 1909 and retained that position until three years ago when he was compelled by ill health to resign. At the same time he ceased all other activities and went to San Francisco where he resided with his nephew, Arthur N. Gage.

The wife of Mr. Gage died at San Francisco eleven years ago. At the time of her death Mr. Gage was lying in the same hospital. His only relatives are a brother, George N. Gage, formerly of Tempe but now living in Los Angeles; Arthur N. Gage, a nephew, who was with him at the time of his death, and the wife of Dr. Bennett of this city, a niece.

Mr. Gage held only one official position and he looked back upon his work in that with greater satisfaction than upon any of his great achievements for the development of Arizona. He was the chairman of the capital commission under whose direction the capitol building was constructed without a dollar of graft entering into the structure, which is said to be the best public building in the United States for the money.

Mr. Gage was more than a man of big affairs. He was a most courteous gentleman at all times and perhaps there is not a pioneer in Arizona who will not mourn his death.

BERNER AWARDED $5000 JUDGMENT

End of a Damage Suit in Superior Court.

The case of Harry Berner against J. L. Tremaine, an action for damages for injuries sustained by the plaintiff when he was struck by an automobile driven by the defendant, was tried in superior court yesterday morning.

The accident occurred at the corner of Center and Adams street on July 4 of last year. Several witnesses were examined for the plaintiff. There was testimony as to the circumstances of the accident and the extent of the injury. The defendant did not appear and the jury returned a verdict awarding the plaintiff $5000. Struckmeyer and Fisher appeared for Berner.

At the time of the accident the plaintiff, who is now connected with the customs service at Nogales, was a resident of Phoenix. He left last night for home. He was anxious to be there for he lives about 100 yards from the Mexican boundary and serious trouble is expected there.

At the time Mr. Berner left Juan Cabral, at the head of 1900 constitutionalists was approaching Nogales. Sonora, which was defended by Colonel Kosterlitzky with a small force of rurales in addition to the regular garrison of about 350 men.

A few days ago Colonel Kosterlitzky was on the American side and told Col. Smith commanding the American forces that he was obliged to fight since there was no way to get out of the town, unless he should be allowed to take his soldiers over American territory. Col. Smith was not prepared to give his consent and Kosterlitzky said then he would not surrender so long as his men were able to fight. They are well supplied with arms and ammunition. They have one machine gun but no cannon.

NEW $7000 INDIAN SCHOOL TO BE BUILT

For Salt River Indian Reservation. Growth in Two Years

Next week will witness the starting of the new $7000 school building on the Salt River Indian reservation about eight miles east of Phoenix, according to Agent C. C. Cole, who was a visitor in Phoenix yesterday. Unlimited prosperity awaits the Indians of the reservation just as soon as they can get the water supplies they want. Remarkable success has been met in introducing new crops among the red men. Notable among the crops is corn, with which one Indian took first prize at the last state fair. Peruvian alfalfa, which is so hardy it stood the frost last month without withering a mite has been planted from seed secured at Sacaton, and three crops were cut the first year.

Mr. Cole took charge at the agency two years ago when there was but one shack in sight. In the two years there has been added a set of up-to-date brick houses with all modern appliances. His visit to Phoenix was chiefly to secure postoffice supplies for the station.

There are about 7000 acres of very fertile land in the reservation and as time goes on it is being taken up, allotted and otherwise given into the hands of the Indians. The cropped area increases every month. The Hopi village near the agency was the scene of Ralph Earle's picture taking for the Pathe "See America First" series, in which Governor Hunt is a prominent actor.

G. K. CHESTERTON AND THE SUFFRAGETTES

I learn from a newspaper paragraph that Mrs. Pankhurst announced her intention of "doing everything constitutional or unconstitutional" to avenge the evasion of her claims. I do not in the least complain of that. My present attitude towards practical politics, especially in this matter, is gloomy, but impartial. I think the statesmen have thoroughly deserved their suffragettes. I think the suffragettes have thoroughly deserved their statesmen. Even if I hated either of them much worse than I do, I could not wish either of them a worse fate than to be brought in contact with the other. The demand for a vote at this moment is a quibble as dehumanized and unnatural as Shylock's demand for a pound of flesh. But I willingly agree that the politician's way of getting out of it has been as pedantic and fanciful as Portia's own quibble about the drop of blood. I think the women are wrong if they say they are right; I think the men are right if they say they are wrong. And I do feel that there is something rather despicable about those who quibble on the right side, who use unnatural tricks when they could more easily appeal to Nature, and trust only to private intrigue when they might safely trust public opinion. I am not defending the politicians against the suffragettes; far from it. The living millions of this country, on both sexes, would clear such fussiness out of the way much more promptly and practically than the politicians have done. The ancient human tradition which gives to the female the private house and to the male the public house (called in decay the parliament) would be overwhelmingly reaffirmed by any referendum, and still more by any mob.
